Adriana Popescu joined Kennedy Library in 2015 as the Associate Dean for Academic Services to lead the library’s instructional programs that support teaching, learning and educating career-ready students. Since 2016 she is the Interim Dean of Library Services at Cal Poly’s Kennedy Library where she is responsible for the direction, development, implementation and assessment of all aspects of library services and programs, ensuring that they meet the changing needs of academic teaching, research and scholarship.

Previously, she held positions at University of Notre Dame and Princeton University where she oversaw transformative changes in the areas of library services, collections, information technology, facilities and advancement. Throughout her career, Popescu built lasting partnerships between the library or library units and other campus organizations, based on a shared system of values and principles centered on enabling student, researcher and faculty success. She is committed to enriching the work environment by fostering and embracing opportunities created by diversity along a number of dimensions, including race, ethnicity and national origin, gender and gender identity, sexuality, class and religion.

Popescu holds a joint BS/MS degree in Civil Engineering from the Technical University of Civil Engineering Bucharest, Romania and an MLS degree from Rutgers University, NJ.
