I. Minutes: The minutes of September 13, September 21, and October 5 were approved as presented. The minutes of October 12 were approved with the following correction:
Discussion Item B. – last sentence should read: It was agreed that the following four individuals—Ken Brown, Lewis call, Steve Lewis Rein, and Phil Nico—will get together and choose a representative.

II. Communications and Announcements: none.

III. Reports:
A. Academic Senate Chair: Fernflores reported that the Strategic Plan Task Force discussions are going in a different direction now asking that we do not endorse the document in its original form. They like the idea of strategic planning but not necessarily the Strategic Plan. They like several of the key ideas in the Strategic Plan, however, they would like to see more faculty involvement in the development of the plan and more concrete direction.

B. President’s Office: none.

C. Provost: Koob reported that Cal Poly was forced to accept application for spring term and then asked by the Chancellor’s office to accept additional students from that pool. In order to offset one time funding, the Chancellor will request to the Board of Trustees at its November meeting for the additional 5% fee increase for next year. The net effect of this increase should yield more income than the one-time funding.

D. Statewide Senate: none.

E. CFA Campus President: none.

F. ASI Representative: Storelli reported that Cal Poly registered 2,422 students to vote in the November 2 election. That is 14.5% of the students body, placing Cal Poly as the number one campus in the CSU and the best ever in Cal Poly’s ASI history. The UU Advisory Board will begin its outreach project to various clubs regarding the Rec Center uses. The Executive Cabinet is working on a health and wellness fair, which will encompass issues from campus safety to Cal Poly organic farm. This is scheduled for Tuesday, January 18, 2011.

[Highlighted information is the stated criteria for this committee.]

HARVEY GREENWALD (Math Dept):
I have served two terms as Academic Senate Chair. I have also served two terms as chair of the Academic Senate Curriculum Committee, which included two catalog cycles. I have also served as a member of the Academic Senate Curriculum Committee.

While I have not served on the GE Committee, I have served as the Academic Senate representative on the GE Program Review that was conducted during the fall of 2006. Moreover, I was the Chair of the Academic Senate during the period when the GE Program was reorganized.

I have had a long-standing interest and involvement in curriculum at the department level, the college level, and the university level.

Similarly, while I have not had formal membership on any GE Committees, I have had a long-standing interest and involvement with GE. In addition, the Mathematics Department teaches a number of GE courses.

DAVE HANNINGS (Horticulture & Crop Sci Dept):
As most of you know, I served as the chair of the Academic Senate Curriculum Committee for seven years. That service was interrupted by two years' service as Chair of the Academic Senate. Before that I was Senate Vice Chair for two years and served as caucus chair for my college starting sometime in the early 1990s.

Among many other resolutions, policies, and procedures, I authored the campus Diversity Learning Objectives, and co-authored the proposal and resolution establishing this appeals committee.

I pay attention and do my homework.

On a technical note, I am now a FERP. I am on campus fall and spring quarters teaching. Winter quarter I would be available for service on this committee after I return from South America on January 25.

I would be pleased to serve on this committee and help improve the curriculum appeals process.

Proposed by: WASC/Academic Senate Teacher Scholar Model Task Force
Date: November 16 2010
BACKGROUND:
This essay begins by recognizing that though Cal Poly is a teaching-centered institution, scholarship has taken on a greater importance as the mission of the institution has evolved. The essay finds that Cal Poly faculty and staff appear to engage in a high level of scholarly activity that enhances student learning, according to the results of the 2009 Cal Poly Student and Faculty/Staff Surveys, the Department Head/Chair Survey, and the literature. Progress toward enacting the teacher-scholar model at Cal Poly, however, has been hampered by the lack of: 1) a comprehensive understanding of scholarship, and 2) an accepted working definition of the model.

Cal Poly has traditionally been a teaching-centered institution, but, over the last thirty years, scholarship has gradually taken on a role of greater importance. The University’s mission is tied to that of the CSU, and the system’s mission has changed significantly since the days when faculty scholarship was proscribed in keeping with the strict vision of the 1960 California Master Plan for Higher Education. In 1989, with significant leadership provided by Cal Poly and the Cal Poly President’s Cabinet, the Joint Committee for Review of the Master Plan for Higher Education concluded that research, scholarship, and creative activity are central to the mission of the CSU, and the Educational Code was changed to reflect this conclusion. The Cornerstones Report of 1997 acknowledged this change when it stated that “faculty scholarship, research and creative activity are essential components” of the CSU’s teaching-centered mission (Principle 4). A decade later, the 2007 CSU Provosts’ Statement asserted the economic value of what has come to be known as the “teacher-scholar model,” whereby teaching and scholarship are understood to be mutually reinforcing. The statement identified the model as an important way to keep California’s citizens competitive in a global marketplace based on human capital economies—an important consideration for an institution that has always played a major role in preparing the state’s workforce. In turn, Cal Poly’s current mission statement emphasizes fostering teaching and scholarship.

The literature on student learning supports the value of an increasing emphasis on scholarship within the CSU and at Cal Poly. Student involvement in undergraduate research is a form of active learning, and it has been deemed a high impact practice that enhances student retention and engagement. Though undergraduate research is more common in the sciences, student involvement in faculty scholarship is possible in all disciplines and yields encouraging results. According to the provosts, it increases the frequency of meaningful interactions with faculty and peers; encourages students to spend more time and effort on research, writing, and analytic thinking; and involves them in more collaborative forms of learning.

Scholarship also benefits student learning by helping to maintain faculty and staff enthusiasm. As the CSU Provosts have stated, “When faculty [members] are at the cutting edge of their disciplines, they remain connected with the source that feeds their intellectual curiosity and creative abilities and are able to establish and maintain partnerships with other scholars around the world.” This scholarly currency, in turn, enhances faculty teaching and interactions with students, from freshman through doctoral levels.
RESOLUTION ON A WORKING DEFINITION of LEARN BY DOING

Background: Pages 11-16 of the WASC Capacity and Preparatory Review Report describe a two year effort to develop a definition of “learn by doing” based on: the analysis of pedagogical theories and current practices by the WASC Learn By Doing Working Group; campus surveys and focus groups conducted for all campus constituencies; and student research. Additional efforts to refine the definition through committee efforts and faculty solicitation have occurred since the December 2009 submittal of the Preparatory Review Report.

WHEREAS, The Cal Poly community has never adopted a working definition of learn by doing; and

WHEREAS, Learn by Doing was one of the four major themes of Cal Poly’s WASC Self Study Committee approved by WASC; and

WHEREAS, The WASC Review Team encouraged Cal Poly to provide an evaluative definition of our Learn by Doing educational philosophy following its initial review in early 2010; and

WHEREAS, Programs may use this definition of Learn by Doing to assess the diverse ways in which Cal Poly’s signature pedagogy contributes to student learning at Cal Poly; and

WHEREAS, Learn by Doing is an educational model that represents all disciplines at Cal Poly and thus is in need of a definition that reflects this diversity; therefore it be

RESOLVED: That the Academic Senate of Cal Poly adopt the following definition of Learn by Doing:

“Learn by doing is a deliberate intellectual process whereby students acquire and apply essential knowledge and skills through self-reflective, active engagement in their education inside the classroom and beyond it.”
