Revisit report on encouraging RSCA committee recommendation.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	The committee discussed the process by which the report will be drafted in the Spring Meeting. A report has been provided to the Senate with these meeting notes.
Discuss relationship between high-impact practices (HIPS) and service learning on undergraduate research. Academic Year 2017-2018	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	The committee recognized the importance of RSCA being part of the classroom especially given Cal Poly’s emphasis on “learn by doing”. These ideas have been included in the aforementioned report provided to the Senate.

NOTES/ Meeting Minutes (Meeting on 4/25/28):

Following members were present:

Alexander, Chand, Flores, Kitts, Liddicoat, O’Hara, Pande, Schwab.

In the meeting on 4/24/18, the committee discussed ideas for encouraging RSCA and what measures may be used to evaluate the level of RSCA. These ideas have been added to the draft report being prepared as per the committee’s charge<sup>1</sup>. These ideas included community engagement as part of the coursework and increased collaboration among colleagues from different colleges.

It was decided that committee chair will reach out to all the colleges and Graduate Education to seek out the programs currently in place to encourage RSCA. These ideas will be drafted as part of the aforementioned report by the chair circulated to the committee for feedback.
