RATIONALE

• “Crashing” phenomenon getting worse each year
• Large numbers of advising appointments around class availability concerns
• Lack of standard protocol for students to follow
• Students “shopping” for permission numbers. Some hold on to them.
• Some freshmen give up altogether
• “Crashing” concern comes up during recruitment events
Registration Changes to Waitlists & “Add/Drop Period”

NEW PROCESS

• “Enroll from waitlist” process will run until the 4th day of classes
  • Waitlists will run twice a day – at noon and in the evening
  • If the class has waitlist – students cannot self-enroll. Vacated seats will be filled through the waitlist
  • If the class has no waitlist – students can self-enroll during the first 4 days; no permission number needed!
  • As of 5th day, permission number is required to enroll for every class

• Departments can still produce to permission numbers to
  • Override enrollment capacity
  • Override requisites
  • Caution: Permission numbers (that override enrollment capacity) given to a student to fill a vacated seat in class, if used after the waitlist run, might create unintended enrollment increase in your class

• As of 5th day, faculty will be provided with permission numbers
Registration Changes to Waitlists & “Add/Drop Period”

STUDENT COMMUNICATION

• The new waitlist limit (max 16 units) and registration process during the first week of classes
• DO drop yourself from waitlist(s) you are no longer interested in
• DO attend each class session of the class(es) you are waitlisted in
• Student will receive specific emails for each class they are enrolled in through waitlist process

FACULTY

• Still has access to permission numbers through their department office during first 4 days
• Still can choose to “line-drop” students who do not show up during the first class session
• “Line-drop” can occur either from the roster OR the waitlist
Upcoming Initiatives

• Upgrading PolyPlanner
• Retiring and replacing PASS
• A new, unified, and transactional campus mobile app
