NOTES:

The committee met on Wednesday, 1/10, to narrow the nominees down to finalists for classroom visitations during winter and spring quarters. We settled on seven finalists this year (six is historically more common), but our clear "top seven" included a professor who would be on sabbatical these winter and spring quarters and thus unavailable for classroom observations. Subsequently, a second professor dropped out for personal health reasons, so we will be assessing five finalists in the first half of spring quarter.

We will next convene in week six of spring quarter to narrow the finalists down to recommended recipients of this year's DTA, which will then go to the president for final approval.
