Brock Center – Request for Article Submissions: AgCircle is a nationally recognized student-run publication and a great opportunity to showcase student work and involvement in the agriculture industry. We are publishing an all-digital edition of AgCircle during the 2020-2021 academic year. This opens up a lot of opportunities for new kinds of contributions in addition to our traditional feature stories, and we're seeking digital photography, video and even audio material to publish about food, agriculture and the environment topics/stories. We're especially interested in featuring stories of historically underrepresented people and groups. If you are interested in contributing to the magazine this year, please reach via email or on social media. We will set up meetings to discuss submissions in the next two weeks and can share our planned writing and editing timelines then; the magazine will be published in early January 2021.
