ABOUT US

We are a team of professional engineers committed to providing creative solutions for our clients. We approach each project with critical thinking and rigorous design.

At the core of our collaborative approach is our belief that we can reach beyond the traditional roles of structural engineers to understand the issues of constructability and architecture, and thereby complement and support the other members of the team.

Harriott Valentine Engineers is a small, growing, company of engineers that provides structural engineering consulting services to architects, builders, and owners. We specialize in high-end, custom residential homes throughout the Pacific - from Alaska to Hawaii. Our specialties include exploring new materials and trends in structural engineering.
