Parli Pro National Champs!

As October rolls around, most Cal Poly students are focused on school stress and midterms. A few individuals have the opportunity to complete another challenge at the FFA National Convention. Cal Poly Freshman and Agricultural Systems Management (ASM) major, Christian Low, attended the Convention and won the team National Title in the Parliamentary Procedure competition.

Low, a graduate of Minarets High School in Coarsegold, California, journeyed from the Fresno airport to Indianapolis with a few slight hiccups in the trip. “Our flight was delayed six hours from Fresno to San Francisco,” Low said, “it made us get to Indianapolis a lot later than we wanted to.” Despite the rough travel, the rest of the trip was turbulence free.

“I never realized how big of a deal the competition was as far as careers go,” Low said, “professional parliamentarians were there who do what we do for a living.” Although Parliamentary Procedure does not directly apply to ASM, Low believes it will help him in business settings in the future. Completing the test for the national competition along with a first place finish allowed Low to become an accredited parliamentarian.

Low became involved with the high school FFA program his freshman year, but did not join the Parliamentary Procedure team until the following year at the prompting of his parents. He quickly fell in love with the competition, people, and coaching making Parliamentary Procedure the focus of his high school agricultural career.

The Parliamentary Procedure competition tests the ability to communicate ideas during a meeting. The event is broken into a test on parliamentary law, a demonstration of Parliamentary Procedure, oral questions, written minutes of the demonstration, and a team problem solving activity. To reach the National FFA Convention each team competed on local and state levels.

The championship team also included David Broyles (a Cal Poly Civil Engineering freshman), Shyann Mattes, Sienna Pillsbury, Teresa Spencer, and Michael Warnert.

Interested in getting involved in the Green Building Industry? Opportunities are plentiful in the field of sustainable design and LEED is at its forefront.

LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) is simply a green-rating point system, or a scorecard. The more energy efficient and sustainable a building is, the more points it will earn. To date, this course and its materials have proven to be instrumental in helping over 5000 students pass their respective exam at a 100% pass rate. This course is offered at a quarter of the price and time as the competition and is geared at allowing students to graduate with letters after their name!

Just as Buildings can be LEED certified, people in the sustainable construction industry can become LEED Professionals. The LEED Green Associate (GA) credential is the only entry level sustainability designation and shows employers and clients that you have certified knowledge in the green building industry. A new LEED rating system (v4) was introduced last month and this training course is one of the few that has been updated to teach the current rating system. This course meets the exam's eligibility requirements and the USGBC charges a $100 (reduced for students) fee for the actual exam which can be taken at any time at your nearest Prometric center.

Cost: $300 ($200 for full time students)
