Cal Poly Food Distribution Site to be Held on Campus April 28

Campus Health and Wellbeing (CH&W) is continuing its Basic Needs services for the campus community. Any student, staff or faculty member can stop by the lower level of the Health Center (No. 27), from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday to receive a grocery bag of food. In addition, the Food Bank Coalition of SLO County's on-campus food distribution site continues to be held on campus. On Tuesday, April 28 from 3:30-5 p.m., the Food Bank and CH&W volunteers will be on Mott Lawn to distribute grocery bags. The Food Bank Coalition administers TEFAP (The Emergency Food Assistance Program) once a month at no cost to low-income families and individuals to help with nutrition assistance. This service is being provided to ensure that all students, faculty and staff have access to nutritious foods. Campus Health and Wellbeing will continue to support this food distribution site every fourth Tuesday of the month. For more information, contact wellbeing@calpoly.edu.

Student Employees Recognized Online

Each year during National Student Employment Week — held April 12-18 — Cal Poly hosts an award ceremony that recognizes the contributions student employees make to the university. The ceremony invites the nominees and their staff/faculty supervisors to gather in a beautiful setting, be treated to a delicious Campus Dining-catered lunch, and be personally recognized by President Armstrong and their peers. This year the event was unfortunately canceled. In lieu of the event, the campus community is asked to reflect on the amazing work our student employees provide every day, and to reach out to their present or past student employees and let them know how much their contributions are appreciated. Especially during this time, their presence and efforts are dearly missed. For more information and a list of the 2019-20 nominees, go to <https://afd.calpoly.edu/payroll/students/student-employee-of-the-year>.

Campuswide Policy on Data Management Now Available

The interim campuswide policy on data management (CAP 152) is now available and online. As everyone on campus works with data in some form, this policy applies to all. CAP 152 outlines what is defined as Cal Poly's data, how it is managed, how it can be accessed and how it should be properly distributed and handled. The full campuswide policy on data management can be read at <https://policy.calpoly.edu/cap/100/cap-150#cap-152>.

New Book and Learning Circles to be Offered Virtually in Spring

Employee and Organization Development invites employees to participate in the spring 2020 Book and Learning Circles. The circles will be offered via Zoom and books will be sent electronically to participants.

— Book Circles involve reading a book over the course of three to five sessions. The first book, "Crucial Conversations" by Patterson, Grenny, McMillan and Switzler, has revolutionized the way millions of people communicate when the stakes are high. The second book, "Tiny Habits" by B.J. Fogg, the world's leading expert on habit formation, shows how you can have a happier, healthier life.

— Learning Circles involve watching a video or reading an article and participating in a discussion during a single session. In the first learning circle, "Crucial Conversations: Master My Stories," Cricket Buchler explores how cognitive biases can lead us to misplace blame resulting in confrontations that go badly. She goes on to offer a framework of six sources that influence human behavior and strategies to rethink our conclusions for healthier and more positive outcomes to our crucial conversations. The second learning circle is "How Frustration Can Make Us More Creative," with Tim Harford, and shows us that challenges and problems can derail your creative process — or they can make you more creative than ever. In the third learning circle, "How to Create Meaningful Connections While Apart," Priya Parker highlights the value of gathering despite distance, and shares tools for creating meaningful connections.
