Thousands Attend Virtual Open House

Cal Poly's first-ever Virtual Open House kicked off over the weekend to great success. It began with a University Welcome from President Armstrong and ASI President Mark Borges on Friday. Saturday consisted of information sessions from each of the six academic colleges and their departments. Sunday focused on student life with a welcome from Vice President Humphrey, housing and dining information, a session on diversity and inclusion efforts and more. Thousands of newly admitted students and their supporters attended these virtual information sessions and were able to ask questions and experience Cal Poly in their own homes. Thank you to New Student and Transition Programs, Admissions and Recruitment, University Marketing and all others who made this virtual event possible. View recordings of most events as well as this week's events at calpoly.edu/virtual-open-house.

ASI Launches New Website Designed to Improve User Experience

ASI has announced the launch of the organization's new website at asi.calpoly.edu. The new website offers an improved user experience, including easy-to-navigate pages, digital submission of forms, a consolidated calendar for programming and events, an enhanced facility scheduling process, and a mobile-friendly interface. The project has been more than three years in the making and has been a true collaboration among all areas of the organization and the university. From day one, students and the student experience drove every decision. From focus groups and data gathering, to committee review, concept testing and designing components on the page, students were involved in every step of the process. With the necessity to offer virtual programming and services immediately, the new website has been modified to reflect and promote ASI's current virtual offerings. Anyone with questions can contact Dora Mountain, coordinator — Public Relations, Communications and Marketing, at dmountain@calpoly.edu.

Virtual Tomato Spectacular Sale, with Plant Pickups, Started April 17

Cal Poly's annual Tomato Spectacular plant sale will go on — with plants available for purchase online and scheduled pick-up times on campus. More than 70 different types of tomato plants are available at the annual sale. Online ordering began April 17 at www.polyplantshop.com and will continue until plants are sold out. Customers will be asked to provide a phone number and will be called with a day and time to pick up their orders in parking lot H-12, south of the horse and horticulture units on Via Carta Road off Highland Drive. Additional pick-up locations will be provided in Los Osos and Morro Bay for customers in those areas. The cost is $6 per plant.

In Memoriam

Armando Pezo-Silva, director of Student Academic Services and the Educational Opportunity Program at Cal Poly from 1980 to 2002 and a key staff member with Student Affairs for more than 25 years, died Friday, April 17, in Cusco, Peru, where he had lived since retirement. Pezo-Silva was dedicated to the success of first-generation, low-income college students and was a principal writer of numerous grants and programs designed by Student Academic Services, including Student Affirmative Action, Educational Talent Search, Upward Bound, Student Support Services, the initial Minority Engineering Program, Summer Institute and many others. Pezo-Silva's legacy at the university in the successful funding of these grants, as well as the ongoing programming that benefited first-generation college students. His tireless work on data-driven planning and assessment throughout his career greatly improved the graduation and job placement rates of underrepresented students. Pezo-Silva was enchanted with accelerated learning, technology and virtual learning early on and was committed to innovation in all areas of education and administration, including the development of the Cal Poly portal. His commitment to student success resulted in Cal Poly's recognition as a leading campus in engineering and architecture for Hispanic students. Pezo-Silva was a visionary guide and the heart of Student Academic Services and its many programs for several decades. A memorial will be planned at a future date.
