Cal Poly Names Philip Williams as Dean of College of Liberal Arts

Philip J. Williams, Ph.D., professor of political science and director of the Center for Latin American Studies at the University of Florida, has been named as the new dean of the College of Liberal Arts, Provost Kathleen Enz Finken announced. Williams succeeds Interim Dean Kathryn Rummell, longtime chair of the English Department, who has led the college since August after the retirement of previous dean Doug Epperson. Williams earned his master's degree in Latin American Studies and doctorate in politics from the University of Oxford. He is a native of California and earned his bachelor's degree in political science from UCLA. He has taught political science since 1987, first as an assistant professor at Truman State University in Missouri from 1987-89 and as an assistant, associate, and then full professor at the University of Florida. He served as chair of the university's Political Science Department from 2004 to 2007. Williams has a long record of commitment to diversity and inclusion at the University of Florida, including his support of undocumented students and his leadership since 2009 of the Center for Latin American Studies, a campuswide hub that leads and supports initiatives to increase academic engagement, research collaboration, and international education opportunities focused on Latin America and the Caribbean.

Inclusion Starts with Me Teach In Set for Feb. 21

As part of the university's continuous commitment to diversity and inclusion, the College of Liberal Arts (CLA) is pleased to announce the third Inclusion Starts with Me Teach In from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 21. The event is open to the campus community and will feature several Cal Poly educators. The Inclusion Starts with Me Teach In is a partnership with the CLA, the Office of University Diversity and Inclusion (OUDI), and Academic Affairs. View a full schedule of events at <https://cla.calpoly.edu/teach-in>.

Pixar Pro Will Share Her Lighting Magic in College of Engineering Diversity Series

Danielle Feinberg, whose TED Talk about working at Pixar Animation Studios has inspired scores of girls to pursue computer science, will give a talk, "The Art and Science of Bringing Imagined Worlds to Life," from 11 a.m. to noon Thursday, Feb. 21, in the auditorium of the Advanced Technologies Laboratory (No. 7). Feinberg, who is the director of photography and lighting at Pixar, has worked on several blockbuster films, including "WALL-E," "Finding Nemo" and "Coco." Growing up in Boulder, Colorado, she attended summer camps and after-school programs for elementary students interested in computer programming and engineering. Eventually, Feinberg went to Harvard, where she was one of few women pursuing computer science. At 22, she joined Pixar, working first as a technician on "A Bug's Life," before quickly becoming a vital part of the franchise's trademark lighting magic. Her talk is part of the Cal Poly Engineering Diversity and Inclusion Speaker Series.

Cal Poly Corporation Marks 10 Years of Support for Prado Day Center

Cal Poly Corporation and Campus Dining are proud of their ongoing efforts to support the Prado Day Center, a service center for the homeless community in San Luis Obispo. The bi-monthly effort was started by Carly Baker, wife of Cal Poly President Emeritus Warren Baker. Several corporation employees are part of a group of Cal Poly supporters who volunteer their time the third Monday of every other month, serving lunch to about 120 Prado Day Center clients. Campus Dining prepares and provides part of the meal that is served by the Cal Poly group. Carly Baker and Sharon Armstrong, President Armstrong's wife, have continued to make the volunteer service a priority, with the assistance of Campus Dining and Cal Poly Corporation. "We have been so fortunate to have the ongoing support of the Cal Poly community," said Mary Parker, president of the People's Kitchen board of directors. "They play a very important role in our organization's success."
