Center for Sustainability to Hold March 12 ‘Nutrient Logic’ Seminar for Growers

The Center for Sustainability will host a lunchtime seminar by Steve Trotter titled “Nutrient Logic for Soil Health: Managing Nutritional Programs in Declining Soil and Water Conditions,” from 11:30 to 1 p.m. Tuesday, March 12, in San Luis Obispo. Soil plays a critical role in plant health and immunity. One of the best tools for promoting soil health is an understanding of soil nutrition. Trotter’s presentation will examine basic factors involved in appropriate nutrient management to improve soil function. Topics will include supporting soil biomass function, identifying limiting factors such as soil physical properties’ critical nutrient relationships, and biostimulant and catalyst tools. Trotter is an independent researcher for agriculture and turf and consultant for Agroplasma. The seminar will be held at the University of California Cooperative Extension (UCCE) Auditorium, 2156 Sierra Way in San Luis Obispo. It is co-hosted by Surendra Dara, UC Cooperative Extension advisor for entomology and biologicals, and co-sponsored by the Department of Agriculture Natural Resources Conservation Service and the Coastal San Luis Resource Conservation District. This free, brown-bag event is open to everyone, but registration is requested. Attendees are asked to bring their lunch, soil questions and a friend. Register at <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/nutrient-logic-for-soil-health-tickets-57039097476>.

Join the Center for Health Research for a Seminar on Cultural Humility and Eliminating Health Disparities

Visiting UC Davis Professor Jann Murray-Garcia will discuss race, health care and her passion for eliminating health disparities in a talk titled “Cultural Humility: Interrupting Our Scripts of Racial Inequality” at 11:10 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 28, in the Baker Center for Science and Mathematics (No. 180), Room 101. Murray-Garcia, assistant professor at UC Davis’s Betty Irene Moor School of Nursing, will discuss the difference between cultural competency and cultural humility, a term she helped coin. The talk is part of the Center for Health Research’s seminar series and is co-sponsored by Career Services Diversity Funding Committee, CLA Lottery funds and the Ethnic Studies Department. For more information, email healthresearch@calpoly.edu.

Cal Poly Students, Faculty, Staff Needed for SLO Community Study

Professor Greg Brown, head of the Natural Resources Management and Environmental Sciences Department, is seeking participants for a San Luis Obispo study that examines future growth and development. Brown, along with Cal Poly students, designed a survey that allows people to identify their favorite places and where they think different types of development should — or should not — occur. This information will be used to inform future decisions about land use in San Luis Obispo. The survey website is interactive and asks participants to drag and drop markers onto a Google map. Participation is easy. Simply click on this the website at www.landscapevalues.org/SLO and follow the instructions. A Cal Poly student has also created a YouTube video that explains what to do: <https://youtu.be/PSbLpgV6at8>. Results of this research will be shared with the participants, and they will also be entered into a drawing for multiple gift cards that support local businesses. If you have questions about this study, contact Greg Brown at ggbrown@calpoly.edu.
