Take Part in 'Why Give?' Week and Poly Gives March 5-8

March 5-7 is "Why Give?" Week, a student-led, campuswide awareness week highlighting the value of giving back and the direct impact private giving has on the unique Cal Poly student experience. Every day during "Why Give?" Week from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Annual Giving student ambassadors will have a booth in the UU Plaza to engage their peers in actively recognizing the countless individuals who have made a tangible difference in their lives as students. Taking the form of photos, thank you cards and personal messages sent from students to donors, faculty and staff, this week will culminate in Cal Poly's Day of Giving, Poly Gives, on March 8. A 30-hour digital giving campaign, Poly Gives is the day when alumni, parents and friends give back to the Cal Poly they love, and students show their appreciation for the thousands of generous donors, faculty and staff who help make Learn by Doing possible. Poly Gives raises awareness among students about the impact of private giving and part of a greater movement on campus to cultivate a spirit of philanthropy among the greater Cal Poly community. Students, faculty and staff are invited to sport their Cal Poly proud gear and come out to Poly Gives UU Hour in the UU Plaza at 11 a.m. Thursday, March 8, for free food, giveaways and a photo booth.
