Inclusion Starts with Me Teach-In to be Held Thursday

As part of the university's continuous commitment to diversity and inclusion, Academic Affairs will partner with the Office of University Diversity and Inclusion to host the second "Inclusion Starts with Me Teach-In" from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 25. The event is open to the campus community and will feature several Cal Poly educators. With "Define American" as the theme, some of the proposed topics designed to inform and inspire attendees include:

- Want to Change the World? Start Here!
- Myths We Tell Our Students: Re-examining How We Teach Immigration
- Fake News and the Backfire Effect
- Ancestry, Race, and Citizenship: Uses and Misuses of Genetic Tests
- What American Muslims Really Believe

In addition to workshops, other happenings will occur throughout campus: an art-as-activism feature event from 11 a.m. to noon in the UU Plaza; a STRIDE seminar, "Stress in Chinese Immigrants: A Possible Application for Epigenetics" at 11 a.m. in the Mathematics and Science Building (No. 38), Room 121; and Pulitzer Prize-winning author Viet Thanh Nguyen will provide a keynote address and book signing from 4 to 6 p.m. in Chumash Auditorium. More information and the schedule of workshops can be found at <https://diversity.calpoly.edu/inclusion-starts-me-teach>.

Free Rec Friday Offered at the Recreation Center Jan. 26

Eligible members of the Cal Poly community (alumni, employees, emeritus, affiliates, and household members of an existing member) are invited to the Rec Center as guests for the day, free-of-charge on Friday, Jan. 26. Current members will receive one free guest pass for each eligible friend or colleague they bring (two passes maximum). Guests will have full access to group fitness classes, locker rooms, gyms, exercise rooms, racquetball courts, pools and the ASI Poly Escapes Climbing Park. Photo ID and proof of eligibility is required for entry. Questions? Call membership services at ext. 6-1366.

Retirements

Preston Allen retired as the director of Campus Experience and Logistics for the Corporation in December 2017, after 24 years at Cal Poly. He began his career at Cal Poly in 1993 as the executive director for University Housing and served in many roles, including senior associate vice president for Student Affairs, and with Conference and Event Planning, Student Academic Services, Disability Resources, and New Student and Transition Programs. He also served as interim vice president for Student Affairs. During his tenure with University Housing, he oversaw the 2003 opening of Cerro Vista and the 2008 opening of Poly Canyon Village. He joined the Cal Poly Corporation in 2015 as the director of Campus Experience and Logistics Planning, where he provided leadership and professional expertise in the development and implementation of new campus initiatives supporting Corporation growth.

Becky Holleran retired from the Animal Science Department on Dec. 22 following 17 years of service to the department and a total of 20 to the university. Holleran was the trusted and reliable "budget guru" of the department and will be missed by her colleagues. Her plans for retirement are focusing on the "Gs" of her life: her beloved husband, Gary; her lovely granddaughters; spending time on her passion for genealogy; and improving her golf game. At her request, her retirement was kept low-key. She is, however, available at her Cal Poly email address and would love to hear from the Cal Poly community.
