Employees Invited to Complete the COVID-19 Virtual Transition Survey

The university is conducting the Cal Poly COVID-19 Transition Survey to understand how employees have been impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic and the university's transition to virtual instruction and telework. This survey is a collaboration between Student Affairs, Academic Affairs and Human Resources that seeks to gather key insights, including how Cal Poly faculty and staff are responding to the crisis; provide the best resources available to support employee success; and gather employee perceptions on how the virtual transition has impacted course design, work productivity and more. All employees were invited to participate in the survey in an email from President Armstrong earlier this week. Check your inbox. The survey is anonymous, takes approximately 15 minutes to complete, and will be open through June 23. For more information about the Cal Poly COVID-19 Transition Survey, visit <https://coronavirus.calpoly.edu/transition-survey>.

Gather in Solidarity at the Virtual Vigil for Black Lives on June 11

The campus community is invited to gather in solidarity at a virtual vigil for black lives on Thursday, June 11, from 10:10-11 a.m. All are welcome to attend. Space is limited to 300, so please register in advance at <http://tiny.cc/Vigil4BL>. This vigil is also available via livestream on the Cal Poly VPSA Keith Humphrey Page at <https://www.facebook.com/VPSAKeithHumphrey/>.

Dive into the Latest Issue of Cal Poly Magazine

Students, faculty, staff and alumni share how they continue to Learn by Doing in the midst of the coronavirus pandemic in the latest issue of Cal Poly Magazine. Readers will tag along on virtual hikes, get to know remote research projects, and go behind the scenes of digital sales pitch competitions. They'll also find stories about campus life and athletics from the days before COVID-19. Read articles and watch videos from this digital edition at <https://magazine.calpoly.edu/>.

Emeritus Parking Permits Will Become Virtual July 1

Transportation and Parking Services successfully launched License Plate Recognition (LPR) software in fall 2019. Staff, faculty and student parking permits are now virtual. The roll out of virtual emeritus permits is part of the next phase of the program. Current emeritus physical permits will expire June 30. All emeritus are asked to reply to a survey addressing parking privileges that was sent to their Cal Poly email. These survey responses will activate a new virtual permit that will be valid starting July 1, 2020. For more information about LPR, visit the TAPS website at parking.calpoly.edu/LPR. Each user's parking account should reflect accurate information at all times to stay compliant. Log into your parking account at <https://calpoly.t2hosted.com/Account/Portal> and ensure that the license plate number is correct and linked to an active parking permit.

Honor and Recognize the Class of 2020

Celebrate the Class of 2020 by downloading printable banners and lawn signs, Zoom backgrounds and social media images. Visit the new Spring Commencement 2020 celebration website at <https://www.calpoly.edu/spring-commencement-2020> to access commencement downloads, recognize graduates, and purchase gifts and other memorabilia. Save the date for a special prerecorded tribute to graduates featuring campus leaders and special guests. This virtual celebration will be emailed to graduates and supporters on Friday, June 12, and shared on the Spring Commencement 2020 website, Instagram account and Facebook page. Sign up to receive the tribute video email at <https://www.surveygizmo.com/s3/5394778/Spring-Commencement-2020-Sign-Up>. In addition, the university is mailing special Grad Packs gifts to graduates the week of finals.

Get Involved in New Book and Learning Circles for Summer

Employee and Organization Development invites employees to participate in summer 2020 Book and Learning Circles.

— Book Circles involve discussing a book over the course of three to five sessions. The first book is "Crucial Conversations" by Patterson, Grenny, McMillan and Switzler, which has revolutionized the way millions of people communicate when the stakes are high. The second book is "Tiny Habits: The Small Changes That Change Everything" by B.J. Fogg. The third book, "Driven by Difference: How Great Companies Fuel Innovation Through Diversity," takes a look at the importance of leveraging differences in perspectives and ideas in order for an organization to reap the benefits of a variety of viewpoints. The fourth book is "Emotional Intelligence 2.0" by Travis Bradberry and Jean Greaves. Skills related to emotional intelligence (EQ) are consistently identified as top indicators of success and the most imperative during times of crisis and change such as this COVID-19 pandemic. — Learning Circles involve watching a video or reading an article, and participating in a discussion during a single session. The first learning circle is "The Happy Secret to Better Work" with psychologist Shawn Achor. In this fast-moving and funny talk, Achor argues that happiness actually inspires us to be more productive. The second learning circle comes from Julia Middleton who focuses on developing future leaders in working in a more interconnected world in "Cultural Intelligence: The Competitive Edge for Leaders." In the third learning circle, "How Science Can Fix Remote Work," Adam Grant takes participants inside the minds of some of the world's most unusual professionals to discover the keys to a better work life.

Retirements

Following 24 years on campus, the last six at the helm of the Cal Poly Corporation as chief executive officer, Lorlie Leetham is retiring at the end of July. Leetham has guided the corporation through a number of important initiatives and projects, including a major capital program focused on building a better dining experience with construction of the LEED Gold Certified Vista Grande dining complex to be completed this July. She oversaw development of the Corporation's three-year strategic plan, and several key partnerships, including collaboration on the University Union neighborhood project and the USA Pentathlon National qualifier event this past January. In addition, Leetham oversaw the Corporation's largest fiscal donation to the university, a $5 million contribution to the construction of the William and Linda Frost Center for Research and Innovation, in 2018. A Cal Poly alumna and licensed CPA, Leetham has served Cal Poly in a number of different capacities over the years, including assistant director of Accounts and Payment Management, director of Fiscal Services, and assistant vice president of Fiscal Services and Auxiliary Reporting. She is looking forward to more flexibility and free time — for family, friends, recreation, travel, self-care, and some business pursuits. "My time at Cal Poly has been transformational for me and my family. I am extremely fortunate and will continue to feel that way for a long time," Leetham said.
