Share Your Thoughts in Customer Satisfaction Survey

Administration and Finance wants to hear from you. Now through June 19, all students, faculty and staff have an opportunity to provide feedback on their experiences with all things A&F. This confidential survey will help determine which areas, including Human Resources, Facilities, Police Services, as well as every other unit and department within A&F, are performing well or may need improvement. The survey is accessible through a personalized link that was emailed to all students, faculty and staff May 28, from AFD Customer Satisfaction Survey. If you don't see it in your inbox, check your junk mail folder. The feedback and input from these surveys will help A&F create a better campus climate through improved services and new amenities. Participants are being asked to rate only the departments from which they have received services. Each time a participant completes a survey their name will be added into a drawing for a chance to win one of nearly 75 gifts, including Starbucks gift cards, tickets to shows at the Performing Arts Center, gift baskets, free meals at 805 Kitchen, and a week's entry into the Cal Poly Recreation Center.

Cal Poly Report

Retirements

All staff and faculty are welcome to join President Armstrong for a retirement celebration honoring Provost Kathleen Enz Finken on Wednesday, June 5, in the Rossi Grand Lobby of the Christopher Cohan Performing Arts Center. Refreshments will be served from 3:30 to 6 p.m., with remarks at 4 p.m. Stop by to extend your appreciation and good wishes to Enz Finken, who is retiring after serving seven years as provost.

Longtime horticulture and crop science Professor Wyatt Brown will retire at the end of spring quarter, ending a distinguished career that began in 1990 in the then-Crop Science Department as a vegetable scientist/postharvest physiologist. He has served as the horticulture and crop science assistant department head since 2008. During his nearly three decades at Cal Poly, he taught or helped to teach 14 courses and supervised 11 graduate students. During his tenure, Brown also helped to bring in nearly $2 million in grant funding. He was awarded two patents; one in 2015 and one in 2019 and was awarded the university's Distinguished Scholarship Award (2015), among other accolades. He plans to return to campus one quarter a year to teach his Postharvest Technology class.

Michele Bullock is retiring from Cal Poly Corporation (CPC) on June 28, after more than 13 years of service. Bullock joined CPC in 2006 as a customer service assistant. Since that time, she has been the smiling face who greets everyone entering the CPC Administration Building. Throughout her career, Bullock became the CPC administrative support assistant and was truly the pulse of the business office. She was the focal point of office communication and supervised many student assistants. She helped keep CPC on track with the Tickle Card system, preparing the monthly Business Office Calendar, and opening and closing purchase orders.

Richard N. Savage, Ph.D., dean of graduate education, will retire from Cal Poly on July 15. Savage will be honored with a retirement reception from 3 to 6 p.m. Thursday, June 13, on the patio between the Science Building (No. 52) and the Baker Center for Science and Mathematics (No. 180). Savage, who has been with Cal Poly since 2003, previously served as department chair for both the Biomedical Engineering and the Materials Engineering departments. He was named director of graduate education in 2013 and was selected as dean in 2017. For more information about the reception, contact Kim Infante at ext. 6-6554 or kinfante@calpoly.edu.

Kathleen Sherman, director of Human Resources Partner Services, is retiring after nearly four years at Cal Poly. Sherman has 27 years of HR management experience, including 10 years with the CSU, first as associate director of academic personnel at CSU Monterey Bay and transitioning to Cal Poly in September 2015 in her current role related to employee and labor relations. Sherman has taken great pride in building positive and collaborative relationships with colleagues that she has partnered with along the way. She will relocate to her hometown of Cincinnati, Ohio, where she and her three furry friends will be closer to family. The campus community is invited to attend a retirement party from 2 to 4 p.m. Thursday, June 13, in the Administration Building (No. 1), Room 133.

Al Hauck, department head of the Construction Management Department, will retire in July after 17 years of service at Cal Poly. Hauck received the Bautzer Faculty University Award from the CSU Division of University Advancement, and the Provost's Leadership Award for Partnership in Philanthropy. He has served 15 years on the board of trustees for the accrediting body American Council for Construction Education (ACCE). Hauck was integral in the private fundraising for the Construction Innovations Center (No. 186); it would not be the building it is today without his dedication. The campus community is invited to attend a retirement party from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 12, in the Smith Alumni and Conference Center (No. 28).

After 35 years in the Industrial and Manufacturing Engineering Department and the College of Engineering, Martin Koch retired March 8. Koch worked half time as a lecturer and half time as an electro-mechanical technician III. He was instrumental in the development and continued growth of Cal Poly's foundry program for metalcasting and the Net Shape Manufacturing Lab. He pioneered the concept of 3D printing at Cal Poly and recently worked to install a state-of-the-art additive manufacturing printer for stainless steel powder. Koch's philanthropic efforts resulted in more than $1 million in student scholarships, software training, lab improvements and in-kind donations. A reception will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Thursday, June 13, in the Bonderson Engineering Project Center High Bay (No. 197).
