CPX Listening Sessions Open to Campus Community Through March 14

You're invited to share firsthand accounts of your experiences related to diversity, equity and inclusion at Cal Poly today through Thursday, March 13-14, during CPX Listening Sessions. Input given during these confidential sessions will help support the development and refinement of the university's programs and services to create a more equitable, inclusive campus community. Find a session at <https://diversity.calpoly.edu/cpx/listening-sessions>. Reservations are not required. Different sessions will be held by populations and affinities to create spaces for meaningful dialogue. Attend a session that resonates with you. Several general sessions will also be held:

— March 13: general faculty, 9 to 10 a.m. in the Bonderson Engineering Project Center (No. 197), Room 104; general students, 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. in the Baker Center for Science and Mathematics (No. 180), Room 112.

— March 14: general staff, 9 to 10 a.m. in UU 220; general student, 11 a.m. to noon in UU 220; general faculty, 2 to 3 p.m. in Faculty Offices East (No. 25), Room 125. The aggregate data from the listening sessions and the CPX Survey, which launches April 9, will be shared with the campus community in fall of 2019.

Black Faculty and Staff Association Meeting and Listening Session March 13

The March 13 Black Faculty and Staff Association (BFSA) meeting will be a listening session with diversity, equity and inclusion expert Damon Williams and his team. The meeting will be held from noon to 1 p.m. in Fisher Science Hall (No. 33), Room 290. This listening session is an integral component of the yearlong CPX project. Questions? Contact co-chairs Bryan Hubain, bhubain@calpoly.edu, and Camille O'Bryant, cobryant@calpoly.edu, with any questions.

Learn More About CalFresh Program on March 13

A female student with outstretched arms holding a flyer for Cal Fresh reading "Food Insecurity." CalFresh Outreach, a program on campus to assist students who may need help accessing food, is hosting an event from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 13, on Dexter Lawn. The event is intended to raise student and faculty awareness about the CalFresh program and other campus food resources available to students. The federally funded program provides money specifically for grocery expenses. The outreach team assists students through the entire application process to help them get the money they need for groceries. The team will be available to answer questions, as well as hand out coupons for a free slice of Woodstock's pizza and fresh produce through the pop-up produce stand. The stand provides fresh produce grown on campus to students in need in partnership with the Horticulture and Crop Science Department. In addition, the Cal Poly Food Pantry will collect canned food donations for the Campus Food Pantry.

Faculty and Staff Invited to Sign up for Commencement Communications

Applications Now Being Accepted for Learn by Doing Scholar Awards

Applications are being accepted through Friday, March 22, for Learn by Doing Scholar Awards, which recognize faculty members who are advancing Cal Poly's signature pedagogy through research on Learn by Doing. There are two awards each year: the Completed Research Award of $2,000 recognizes research that has been externally reviewed and shared through publication or presentation, and the Proposed or In-progress Award of $1,000 recognizes promising research proposals or research in-progress and supports faculty in completing and sharing their findings. All current faculty members are eligible to apply for either award. Individual and team (collaborative) applications are welcome and may include students and non-Cal Poly researchers. Applicants will be notified in May and winners will be publicly recognized by President Armstrong during Fall Conference 2019. Learn more at <https://lib.calpoly.edu/faculty/learn-by-doing/>.
