Biennial Baker Forum to be Held Friday

The campus community is invited to attend this year's Baker Forum, "Our Collective Journey Begins: Real and Raw, An Intimate Dialogue to Get Us on Track," from 2 to 4 p.m. Friday, May 4, in the Performing Arts Center. This year's recent incidents have provided an opportunity for real dialogue that will help the university transform. Kimberly McLaughlin-Smith, a diversity specialist at the University of North Carolina-Wilmington who is consulting with Cal Poly to lead the university in some initial healing steps, will deliver the keynote address, "Journey to October." The forum will also include a dialogue with panelists José Navarro, assistant professor, Ethnic Studies Department; Leilani Hemmings Pally, an ethnic studies student; Professor Patrick Lin, Philosophy Department; Professor Stan Yoshinobu, Mathematics Department; Bryan Hubain, assistant dean of students and director of the Cross Cultural Centers; and San Luis Obispo Mayor Heidi Harmon. The Baker Forum was established in 2002 by the Cal Poly's Mayor's Council of Advisors on the occasion of two decades of service to Cal Poly by Warren J. Baker and his wife, Carly. Retirements

Dolores Flores, IT personnel analyst, will retire on Friday, May 4, after 17 years of service. Flores began her work on campus as a personnel assistant for Academic Personnel before working as a personnel analyst at the Orfalea College of Business for eight years. In her last three years, she has been an integral part of the Information Technology Services human resources activities, bringing wisdom, grace and commitment to excellence in all she does. In addition to her work, Flores encouraged the successes of fellow staff, faculty and students on campus with her involvement in the Chicana Latinx Faculty Staff Association and as advisor to Cal Poly's Ballet Folklórico club. Upon retirement, Flores looks forward to spending more time with her family, volunteering with her church and traveling with her husband. She has requested a private send-off, but you may send well wishes to mdflores@calpoly.edu.

Jeanne Schrader, beloved administrative assistant and mom to the Admissions Division, is retiring from Cal Poly in May. Schrader's 10 years of service to Cal Poly began in 2008, when she started in University Housing Business Services. Two years later, she joined the Advancement office in the College of Engineering. In May 2012, Schrader was named administrative analyst for Admissions and Vice Provost of Enrollment and Chief Marketing Officer James Maraviglia. Her loyalty and devotion to the campus community has been exceptional and many will miss her kindness, warmth and thoroughness. Before Schrader and her husband, Mike (of Cal Poly's Facilities Management), retire to their hometown of Highland, California, the Admissions Division will honor her with a send-off reception open to all friends and colleagues from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday, May 11, in Chumash Auditorium in the UU.

In Memoriam

Richard Kranzdorf, longtime professor in the Political Science Department from 1971 to 2008, died Tuesday, April 17, 2018, at Bob and Corky's assisted living home in San Luis Obispo at the age of 80. Early in life when Parkinson's disease was unforeseen, Kranzdorf said he wanted four words to mark his tombstone: "He gave a damn." The list of what Kranzdorf cared about is extensive: social justice, the students that he taught at Cal Poly, and the town of San Luis Obispo. Kranzdorf earned his bachelor's in 1958 and master's in 1959 from the University of Pennsylvania. In 1961, Kranzdorf joined the Peace Corps and began his travels in Africa, teaching journalism and piano at the University of Nigeria in Nsukka for two years. He earned a doctorate in political science from UCLA in 1974. Unconventional, Kranzdorf spent his time and money on what he deemed important: causes, travel, and people in need. He indulged himself in simple pleasures: concerts, films at the Palm Theatre, running, his men's group, getting together with friends, food, outdoor activities, books and newspapers. A celebration of life will be held at 4 p.m., Tuesday, June 12, at Congregation Beth David. Contact sherri39@charter.net if you plan to attend.
