Cal Poly's yak?itvutvu Residential Community Earns LEED Certification

Cal Poly's newest residential community has earned Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Gold certification for being inclusive, healthy and efficient, and home to cost-saving green building features. Located off Grand Avenue and opened to students in September of 2018, the $198 million yak?itvutvu residential community includes seven three- to five-story residential buildings containing 1,475 beds and an adjacent four-level parking structure — all of which were designed and built with social and environmental sustainability as a primary objective. The complex also celebrates the yak titvu titvu yak tihini language, land, people, history and future. "yak?itvutvu — which means 'our community' in the yak titvu titvu yak tihini, Northern Chumash language — was named in honor of and in partnership with the Indigenous peoples of San Luis Obispo County," said Jo Campbell, associate vice president for Student Affairs and executive director of University Housing. "It was designed from the ground up to be inclusive, engaging and student-centered."

Exploring the Future of Cal Poly's Swanton Pacific Ranch

Advanced landscape architecture students partnered with Swanton Pacific Ranch this quarter to create potential designs to be considered during the redevelopment of the ranch following the CZU Lightning Complex fire that destroyed much of it in August 2020. Four student groups will present their projects from 1:10 to 4:10 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 1, in the Advanced Technology Lab (Building 07). Swanton Pacific Ranch staff will also share a few updates and take questions and comments on the strategic intent for the ranch moving forward. The students, enrolled in LA 403: Natural Systems Design Studio, were asked to provide a comprehensive master plan reflecting the ranch's future vision and integrating programs that embrace the characteristics of the region and place, accommodate a variety of educational opportunities, and support its resilience and sustainability.

First Year Success Program Coaches Needed for Winter Quarter

The First Year Success Program (FSP) is looking for graduate students, faculty and staff from across campus to serve as academic coaches for first-time freshmen who are on academic probation for the first time. FSP coaches will support a small group of first-time freshmen by facilitating growth-centered conversations, engaging in goal setting and skill development, and exploring resources that students can use to help them move toward success in future quarters. FSP staff will provide a training on Friday, Dec. 10, to discuss the details of the program and provide materials. All levels of experience and background are welcome. Sign up or express interest before Wednesday, Dec. 8. Questions? Contact Kara Hitchcock at khitch01@calpoly.edu.

Share Input on Cal Poly Branded Styles

Cal Poly's trademark licensing team is seeking feedback about university-branded sweatshirts, water bottles and more! Help the team better understand campus shopping habits and preferences to help inform future design, style and product decisions.

Participants will be entered into a drawing for one of eight $25 Cal Poly university store gift cards. Participants' identities will only be used for entry into the drawing. The team urges faculty and staff to participate and spread the word to their peers. The survey will be open through Tuesday, Nov. 30. Take the survey now.

Donate to Mustang Holiday Gift Drive by Dec. 3

The Center for Service in Action (CSA) invites all students, staff, faculty and their families to contribute to the Mustang Holiday Gift Drive. Contribute by picking up a gift tag and purchasing a gift for a child in need or by donating money via the Mustang Holiday Gift Drive's Spur Change crowdfunding website. Each tag represents a specific request supporting local children and families in need. To pick up a gift tag, visit one of the Gift Tag Pick-up locations on campus: second floor stairway landing in Kennedy Library (No. 35), the second floor of the UU (No. 65) and the CSA in the Science Building (No. 52, Room E22). Bring newly purchased, unwrapped gift items to the CSA by Friday, Dec. 3, to help make a child smile this holiday season. For more information, visit the CSA website.

Recreation Center Alters Hours for Winter

The Cal Poly Recreation Center has shifted to more seasonally appropriate hours for the remainder of fall quarter and into the December holiday break. The change took effect Nov. 15. For complete hours of operation and additional information, visit the ASI facility hours resource page.

Cal Poly Symphony to Host Pianist Tanya Gabrielian for Residency and Concert Dec. 1-3

The Cal Poly Symphony will host pianist Tanya Gabrielian for a three-day residency that will include discussions and performances. Gabrielian has collaborated with the National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI) in programs highlighting the stigma around mental health issues and has worked with other artists in multidisciplinary projects that have earned her international recognition. She will lead a panel discussion titled "Art, Creativity and Mental Wellness" with local NAMI representatives and music therapy professionals at 8:10 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 1. At 11:10 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 2, she will present "Music and Activism" to discuss the ways in which she has combined a career as a solo pianist with her advocacy for mental health awareness, social justice and wellness. The events are free and will be in Room 218 of the Davidson Music Center. At 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 3, the symphony will perform a concert titled "Gabrielian Plays Shostakovich," in the Performing Arts Center. Tickets for the concert are sold at the Cal Poly Ticket Office, ext. 6-4849. For more information, visit the Music Department calendar website or call ext. 6-2406.
