Cal Poly WITH US Research Center Launches Inaugural Upstander Week Campaign

WITH US — the National Network for Peer Accountability at Cal Poly on Monday launched its inaugural Upstander Week campaign, a weeklong conversation with college communities to share knowledge and encourage action during dangerous, life-altering events. The educational campaign aims to empower college students nationwide to become “upstanders,” or individuals with the knowledge and willingness to intervene in situations in which sexual assault, hazing, hate, bias, or alcohol and drug misuse threaten their safety and that of those around them. The campaign will conclude Sunday, Dec. 2, the 10-year anniversary of Cal Poly student Carson Starkey’s hazing death. The campaign will include a forthcoming open letter by Carson’s parents, Julia and Scott Starkey, sharing their gratitude and hope of the past 10 years. Go to <http://withus.org/upstander> for more information.

Share Your Lessons Learned with Cal Poly Magazine

Cal Poly Magazine is asking members of the Cal Poly community to share the biggest lessons they learned in 2018 for an upcoming feature article. As 2018 concludes, what important insights will you take with you into the new year? Faculty, staff, students and alumni can visit <https://magazine.calpoly.edu/year-in-review-2018-lessons-learned/> to submit a brief reflection and photo, or email magazine@calpoly.edu by Wednesday, Dec. 5. The magazine will publish a selection of stories from across campus when the digital edition of Cal Poly Magazine debuts in January 2019.

President and Mrs. Armstrong to Host Holiday Reception in PAC Lobby on Dec. 6

President Armstrong and his wife, Sharon, will host a holiday reception for faculty and staff from 3:30-5:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 6, in the lobby of the Performing Arts Center’s Christopher Cohan Center. Once again, in partnership with local nonprofit Jack’s Helping Hand, guests are invited to bring a donation of a new, unwrapped toy or gift card (Amazon preferred) to the reception. Toy donations may also be made by shopping online on Jack’s Helping Hand’s Amazon wish list: <https://www.amazon.com/gp/registry/wishlist/1Z76G1BBHL8K>. Online toys will be shipped directly to the nonprofit organization. Faculty and staff spouses and partners are welcome to attend the reception. Questions? Contact the Office of the President at ext. 6-6000 or email presidentevents@calpoly.edu.

Contribute to Mustang Holiday Gift Drive by Dec. 7

The Center for Service in Action (CSA) invites all faculty and staff to contribute to the Mustang Holiday Gift Drive by picking up a gift tag and purchasing a present for a child in need this holiday season. To pick up a tag, visit one of the Giving Trees located throughout campus. Giving Trees are located on the second floor of Kennedy Library (No. 35), ASI Student Government (UU-202A), Alumni House and Conference Center (No. 28), Orfalea College of Business (No. 3, Room 431), and the Center for Service in Action in the Science Building (No. 52, Room E22). Each tag represents a specific request supporting local children and families in need. You can also arrange to have CSA staff bring the tags to your office, staff meeting or other event by contacting Katie Ullrich at kullrich@calpoly.edu or ext. 6-5120. Bring newly purchased, unwrapped gift items to the Center for Service in Action by Friday, Dec 7.

Chumash Auditorium Renovation Information-Gathering Session to be Held Dec. 4

In October 2019, ASI will begin a renovation of Chumash Auditorium located in the McPhee University Union. The auditorium has not undergone a large-scale renovation since the building opened in 1971. Through the renovation project, ASI hopes to enhance the many functions of the space while also capitalizing on advances in lighting, sound, staging and more. ASI will hold an information-gathering session for the Cal Poly community on Tuesday, Dec. 4, from 1 to 2 p.m. in Chumash Auditorium. The intent is to gather input on how the space has been used in the past and how it could be improved to meet the needs of the campus community for the future. For more information, contact Ron Skamfer, director — facilities management, at ext. 6-1263 or rskamfer@calpoly.edu.

Faculty, Staff and Students Invited to Provide Feedback on Cal Poly Brand

As part of an ongoing brand strategy effort, all faculty, staff and students will have the opportunity to give feedback on potential creative concepts related to the Cal Poly brand. Each member of the campus community will receive an email this week with a unique link to take an online survey reviewing potential logo and marketing material designs. The survey will take about 15 minutes, and all feedback will be anonymous. The input of the campus community plays a critical role in informing an authentic brand that accurately reflects where Cal Poly is headed. University Marketing is leading the effort with higher education marketing firm SimpsonScarborough. The brand strategy process will also influence a redesign of the Cal Poly website.

Faculty and Staff Invited to Black Faculty and Staff Association's Dec. 5 Meeting

Cal Poly's Black Faculty and Staff Association (BFSA) is pleased to invite interested faculty and staff to its next meeting from 12:10 to 1 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 5, in UU 218. The association's vision, mission and events are available at <https://bfsa.calpoly.edu/>. Questions? Contact co-chairs Bryan Hubain at bhubain@calpoly.edu and Camille O'Bryant at cobryant@calpoly.edu.

Just a Few Days Left to Contribute to Nine Student Projects on New Crowdfunding Platform

Nine student projects are seeking support in the first-ever fall launch of Spur Change, a new digital crowdfunding platform where colleges, units, programs, clubs and organizations can secure funding for projects that enhance the Learn by Doing experience. Hosted and managed by Annual Giving, the Spur Change platform will give project sponsors the opportunity to use the power of crowdfunding by reaching out to networks to raise funds for their featured projects. Visit <https://crowdfund.calpoly.edu/> to help.

Retirements

Tommy DeMoville will retire at the end of December after more than 24 years of service to Cal Poly and Kennedy Library. A Cal Poly alumnus (English, '76; M.A. Education, '92), DeMoville joined Kennedy Library in 1994 as an instructional support assistant in the Learning Resources and Curriculum Department to oversee the multimedia computer lab and provide user education and support. He also consulted regarding computer hardware/software, audio visual equipment and electronic resources. As the needs of the library changed, DeMoville transitioned in 2006 to a library support services and system coordinator position in Digital Services and in 2011 became a workstation specialist for Library Information Technology. Throughout his time, DeMoville assisted the library with adapting to new technology demands and integrating new resources, including virtualized software and desktop imaging, vastly improving library services. His dedication and support have been critical to the success of many large-scale systems improvements in the library, and his hardware expertise has been invaluable. He will be sorely missed. A retirement reception will be held to wish DeMoville a fond farewell from 2 to 4 p.m. Friday, Dec. 14, in Kennedy Library (No. 35), Room 511.
