Architecture and Landscape Architecture Programs Place High in Annual DesignIntelligence Survey

Cal Poly offers the No. 2 undergraduate architecture program in the nation, according to the 2018 DesignIntelligence ranking of the country's 25 best public and private architecture and design schools. Among public universities, Cal Poly's program was ranked No. 1 in the U.S. In addition, Cal Poly's bachelor of landscape architecture program earned the No. 4 spot in the national ranking. In a separate survey of architecture and landscape architecture deans, chairs and other leaders, the architecture and landscape architecture programs were also named the No. 1, most admired undergraduate programs in the U.S. The DesignIntelligence annual report also honors excellence in education and education administration by naming 25 exemplary professionals. This year, architecture Professor Umut Toker was recognized as a Most Admired Educator. The report states: "His dedication inside and outside the studio is unrivaled. He creates an atmosphere of excellence as he seeks to bring out the best in each student."

Events Set to Raise Mental and Emotional Health Awareness

Cal Poly is highlighting mental and emotional health during the month of October. Key campus partners, including Campus Health and Wellbeing, PULSE, ASI Recreational Sports, and ASI Student Government, are hosting a wide range of events and programs such as "Buck the Stigma." This event aims to destigmatize mental health issues, increase awareness of on- and off-campus resources, and encourage students, staff and faculty to take care their mental wellbeing. There will be mental health screening days, awareness galleries and workshops throughout the month. The annual Mark Reuling Volleyball Tournament will be held Friday, Oct. 20. The tournament raises funds for the Mark Reuling Endowment for Mental Health Prevention. For more information, visit <https://mycpwell.com>.

Cal Poly Launches Alternative Transportation Campaign

Cal Poly's Transportation and Parking Services division recently launched a campaign to build awareness of environmentally friendly alternatives to driving a single-occupancy car to campus. The campaign, which launched in Mustang News in September, is titled "My Other Car is ..." and features members of the campus community who use alternative modes of transportation to get to campus. The campaign is aligned with Cal Poly's climate action commitment, as it aims to decrease the number of single-occupancy vehicle trips to campus. Campaign participants include geography Professor Benjamin Timms, who rides the bus from North County; graphic communication student Hannah Moreland and journalism student Haley Pryde, who carpool; ASI employee Bryan Bowers, who rides his bike; and agricultural science student Madyline Braught, who walks.
