New Smoke and Tobacco Free Policy Now in Effect

The California State University system has implemented a "smoke and tobacco free" policy, effective Sept. 1, to promote a healthy and safe campus for students, faculty, staff and guests. Smoking and the use of tobacco products, as well as the use of nicotine products such as e-cigarettes, is prohibited on all Cal Poly property, including indoor and outdoor spaces owned and operated by campus auxiliaries. The policy also includes off-campus space or facilities leased by the campus, as well as off-campus university sponsored events. A "Be Well" campaign will increase the awareness of the smoke-, vapor- and tobacco-free policy on campus; more information and resources are available to support and empower those who want to quit smoking. If policy compliance remains a challenge after extensive campus education and outreach, the university reserves the right to issue fines for infractions. Retirements

Jerry Stockle began his career with the Cal Poly Foundation (now Cal Poly Corporation) in 1977 as a vending service assistant for Foundation Food Service (now Campus Dining). Now, 40 years later, he is headed toward retirement. In 1994, Stockle transferred to the maintenance department to make use of his skill in repairing machines, eventually becoming maintenance supervisor. At the same time, Stockle has run SLO Billiards, his family-owned billiard supply business, and he plans to get his sons into the venture that he cherishes. He is looking forward to remodeling his house, helping his sister take care of their dad, and enjoying more time fishing and camping with loved ones.

Manny Magana is retiring Sept. 29 from Cal Poly after 23 years of service. Magana graduated from Cal Poly in 1989 with a degree in mathematics. Magana began his career with the Admissions Office in 1994 as a programmer. In 2004, Magana became part of the PeopleSoft Student Administration team, writing and modifying reports for Admissions, Financial Aid and the Office of the Registrar. For the last 10 years, Magana has provided a wide variety of ad hoc data sets and reports to the campus at large and has developed and modified PeopleSoft reports in support of Academic Affairs' initiatives and reporting needs. His retirement plans include some traveling, home gardening projects, horticulture and hiking. He also plans to spend more time with his friends and to volunteer for a variety of community projects.
