DICKIE COPELAND

Theatre '06, Communications '06

Dickie Copeland is a development coordinator for Mini Series in the Drama Department at ABC Network. She has worked on several projects including "Astronaut Wives Club", "Madoff", "When We Rise", "Blood and Oil", and the upcoming remake of "Dirty Dancing". Before ABC, she worked at Avalon, the management and production company that produced "Workaholics", "Catastrophe" and "Last Week Tonight with John Oliver". A former member of the Cal Poly Improv team SMILE & NOD, Dickie is a house-team member of the Upright Citizens Brigade Theater in L.A. (the theater started by Amy Poehler) and is in her third year of performing improv there weekly.

NATALIE STONE

Journalism '12

Journalist Natalie Stone graduated with her B.S. in journalism and minor in religious studies in 2012. After being awarded the Department Chair's Award for Leadership in Journalism her senior year, she moved back to her hometown of Los Angeles to pursue a career in the entertainment industry. Last August, she began her position as Associate Editor at PEOPLE magazine in L.A., where she writes about TV news. Although she's three hours away from San Luis Obispo — a.k.a. "SLOme" — she continues to stay actively involved with Cal Poly through serving on the College of Liberal Arts Dean's Associate Advisory Council.

TAYLOR ROSCHEN

History and Political Science '11; MPP '13

After graduating with dual bachelor's degrees in History and Political Science in 2011 and a masters in Public Policy in 2013, Taylor went on to serve as a public service and gubernatorial appointee at the California Department of Food and Agriculture. Now in the role of Assistant Secretary at the department, she serves as the legislative manager and carries a policy portfolio that includes agricultural education, farm-to-fork, and cannabis, among other things. Taylor still loves coming back to SLO any time she can to enjoy a good sandwich from High Street Deli, hiking Bishop's Peak, and of course, visiting her Cal Poly Mustangs!

BIANCA VASVANI

Psychology '12

Bianca Vasvani is a Marketing Manager at Allergy Research Group, a hypoallergenic, condition-specific nutritional supplement company. Bianca manages an international clinical education forum that connects practitioners around the world to discuss complex patient cases. She also manages a team of four, working on strategic community partnerships, advertising and digital marketing. Passionate about working with small businesses, she opened a marketing consulting firm in 2013 to help small businesses in the health, fitness and beauty sectors with marketing efforts and community outreach, connecting these businesses with local non-profits to promote working "in-kind" together. Bianca also serves as the public relations chair on the board for a local non-profit that tutors elementary school children in reading.
