

University Housing Policy Guide

2025-2026

Welcome to University Housing. We strive to create a safe, welcoming, and inclusive environment where all residents can thrive. To do that, we rely on community members to uphold policies that benefit all residents. By electronically signing your University Housing license agreement to live on campus, you have agreed to follow the policies outlined in this document and the license agreement. As a Cal Poly student, you are also responsible for following the Student Code of Conduct.

University Housing Staff will document alleged violations of these University Housing policies and the Student Code of Conduct. Alleged violations will be reviewed by the Office of Student Rights & Responsibilities (OSRR). Learn about Cal Poly's Student Conduct Process and potential outcomes by reviewing the OSRR website.

Alcohol and Other Drugs (AOD) Amnesty Protocol

In California, there are certain legal protections when one calls 911 in good faith to help with a drug or alcohol emergency. (For example, Cal. Health & Safety Code §11376.5.) If a person is experiencing a drug-related overdose, and another person seeks medical assistance to help that person, neither can be charged with a crime for simple possession or being under the influence.

The purpose of the Cal Poly AOD protocol aligns with the intention of such laws. The Cal Poly AOD amnesty protocol removes barriers when seeking help for community members in potentially life-threatening situations involving alcohol and other drugs or substances. This encourages a shared responsibility among all Cal Poly students to call for help without fear of disciplinary consequences. This protocol removes campus punitive sanctions for first-time infractions for use of alcohol and/or other drugs and substances for both the person making the call for help as well as the person experiencing the medical emergency. This protocol applies to medical emergencies or suspected medical emergencies. You may review the AOD Amnesty Protocol here.
