Dear Student:

The faculty and staff at Cal Poly recognize that despite the pandemic slowing down, life is anything but "normal" for most of us. We want you to know that the Cal Poly community is here to support you. While we understand that everyone is experiencing unique challenges during this time, the university is required, by virtue of the academic probation and disqualification policy, to notify students of their academic standing at the end of each term.

This email serves as notification that you have been placed on Academic Probation (AP) status because your term, Cal Poly cumulative GPA (CPSLO GPA) and/or higher education GPA (Higher Ed GPA) has dropped below a 2.00. We know this can be difficult news to hear. You should know that you are not alone in experiencing these challenges and that AP does not define you as a student. Academic Probation status opens an opportunity to receive additional support and learn strategies that can help you on a path to reach your academic goals. Whether your academic difficulties were impacted by personal loss, financial stress, physical or mental health struggles, family obligations, COVID-19-related complications, or other difficulties, we have an Academic Advising team available and ready to work with you so you can return to good academic standing and continue a successful career at Cal Poly!

You will be contacted by your college shortly to ensure you are taking appropriate steps toward academic success. It is important to understand the policy and seek support to improve your academic performance. We hope the break ahead is a time for you to reflect and rest as you prepare for your next quarter. We look forward to seeing you back in good academic standing soon.

Best regards,
Cal Poly, Office of the Registrar
